CHAPTER 04

My Own Page Came First

Carpin Media was born while I was building the ARV Robot page. The idea came to me while doing the work. If I needed a page for my business, why not help other owners build theirs? I started running tests to see how I could use artificial intelligence to create websites.

So far I've built more than 20 sites. A simple page starts at $297. When the project involves several integrations, the cost can exceed $2,000.

One Fewer Question by Phone

A client asked me to make his business run more automatically. What he wanted was very concrete. If someone came to his page with a question about the business, he wanted that person to be able to resolve it right there, without having to call the office.
